The Fifteenth Fulgham-Fulghum Family National Association Reunion, June 23 - 25, 2000 in Jackson, MS

The Year 2000 reunion in Jackson, Mississippi promises to be a memorable gathering of the Fulgh-ms. The Mississippi reunion committee has been busy planning and executing the meeting arrangements. This issue of FFFF brings to the reader the details of the arrangements to date and directions for registering by mail. In order to be included, the reader should register by mail, make hotel reservations, etc. following the deadlines found in this issue on Page 3. Please find in this issue the Pre-registration / dues form for 2000 as an insert. No separate mailing of the form was made and this issue of FFFF is the only notice of the reunion that you will receive.

Glenda Singleton writes, "The hotel rooms are $69.00 for a single and $79 for a double. They do offer Senior Citizen Discount. There is a free shuttle from the airport ... (you) will need to let the hotel know the flight number and arrival time. The Hotel will need reservations by May 25, 2000. There is a free parking garage for hotel guests."

"For those who will be coming in campers, there is a great campground at LeFleur's Bluff State Park."

"The Friday night President's Reception will cost $20.00 per person (drink bar will be extra). The Saturday night dinner will cost $20.00 per person (there will be special entertainment for dinner)."

"On Friday night we would like to have a Family Talent Show (we have several already committed to perform). We ask that anyone who has a special talent to come prepared to perform. This will be a real treat!!!"

"Saturday morning, June 24, 2000, the family board meeting will be dutch treat and will begin at 7:30 a.m. During the day family may take in area attractions or bring artifacts to share (see Charlie Fulghum's article at bottom of page 3). There will be a genealogy meeting from 2:00 p.m. until 4:00 p.m."

Please see pages 3 and 4 for additional information. Do not forget to find the insert and mail it into Peggy Wood with your check. We thank Glenda, the Reunion Committee, and V.P. Charles Fulgham for all of their work in organizing the Reunion.

Associate Archivist's Area

Robert S. Fulghum

Our web page has brought to us new inquiries regarding Fulgham and Fulghum lineages. For this, we are pleased. Our home page may be viewed at

<http://homepages.rootsweb.com/~fulghum/web-text.html.htm>

We invite you to view it and comment. So far, I have not been able to upload the Foljambe Arms to this site so you will see an empty box where the Arms should be.

We continue to receive requests for Fulgh-m lineages and are pleased to work up these requests and furnish them to inquirers at no cost.

I have learned that Judson Fulghum and his brother, James, several years ago transmitted about 6,500 names and lineages from the Fulghum-Fulghum database to the Family History Department of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (LDS) for inclusion in the LDS database. These names, etc. were ones, which Judson was very certain that were correct. Thus, there is a GEDCOM (Genealogical Data COMMunications) compatible version of much of our data. Contact a local LDS Church for more information on how to acquire this database.

The Fulgham-Fulghum Family National Association is still looking for someone knowledgeable in genealogy research to take Judson Fulghum's place as THE ARCHIVIST for the family. We hope you will volunteer if you can do this job for your FFFNA.

Work is progressing slowly on a physical archive for FFFNA data. It is important that we have a safe, reliable place for our documents that can be managed by a professional or trained archivist.

We also are hoping to acquire the documents and archives that Judson Fulghum compiled during his tenure as FFFNA Archivist.

Your Associate Archivist is STILL looking for the UEHARA history book (handwritten with photographs) that was lent to someone?, misplaced ? or lost at the 1997 Reunion in Rock Ridge, NC. Any help would be most

President's Message

George Fulgham

I want to thank everyone for their hard work in putting together the 1999 Fulgham - Fulghum Reunion in Seattle. We hope you enjoyed some of the Pacific Northwest while you were here. Thank you all for coming.

EDITOR'S CORNER

Robert S. Fulghum

We all thank George and his coworkers for an outstanding reunion in Seattle. The Editor apologizes for his lateness in publishing George's message.

At the request of Past President, Peter C. Fulghum, and attendees at the 1999 reunion, I am publishing an article on the Foljambe Coat of Arms in this issue. Another article on the origin and meaning of the family name is in the works to supplement an earlier article

PLEASE NOTE THAT A REUNION REGISTRATION/DUES FORM IS SENT TO YOU WITH THIS ISSUE AS AN INSERT. If you did not receive it or it has been misplaced, please contact Bob Fulghum or Peggy Wood to receive another. It was not possible this year to make separate Dues Notice and Registration form mailings this year.

We hope to see everyone in Jackson, Mississippi on June 23, 2000 for the next reunion.

CHANGE OF E-MAIL ADDRESS

Note that PEGGY WOOD, our Secretary-Treasurer, has recently changed her e-mail address. The new address is

WPEGOW@aol.com

Please use this new address immediately. Messages to Peggy's old address will NOT be forwarded to her new address.

appreciated. This handwritten bound notebook was the work of my cousins, Lillian Uehara Yelton and Ann Uehara Kobayashi. We would like to have it back in the family Archives.

"HEALTHFUL" GENEALOGY

A useful article, Prepare for the Future: Know Your Ancestors appeared in Consumers Reports on Health (Volume 11, No. 9, September 1999). The article states: "Uncovering the (medical) conditions that run in your family may help lengthen or save your life. Family medical history is the guide to proper screening (for impending disease) and is the gateway to genetic testing."

The article is complete with diagrams and information on how to put your family medical history tree to work as a part of your medical care.

Foljambe Arms

A "Coat of Arms" is properly called an Achievement of Arms. It consists of a shield with insignia, a crest and, often, a motto. The term Coat of Arms comes from a surcoat with insignia that was worn over the armor to keep off the heat or cold. Heraldry (more properly, Armory) was established after mid 1150 to distinguish armored combatants in tournaments and during war. By 1350, English courts forbade the use of Arms already adopted or assigned to another nobleman. Eventually, the Crown in England forbade the bearing of Arms without authority. In England, Arms and armored insignia were granted only by the authority of the King of Arms. The official registers of the College of Arms, incorporated in March 1483, include Armorial Bearings granted from the 15th Century to today. Armigerous persons are those persons qualified to bear Arms. Note that there is no such thing as a "Family Coat of Arms," since authority to bear Arms was granted only to individuals. Arms may be inherited. To be entitled to Arms by inheritance one must be able to prove DIRECT, LEGITIMATE male line of descent from an ancestor entitled to the same Arms. Cadet branches of a family may inherit Arms in a modified version. Do Fulghams and Fulghums have a right to use the Foljambe Coat of Arms? The answer is, at the present, NO, not until the parentage of Captain Anthony Foljambe is documented.

Those Foljambes and their heirs entitled to Arms are found in "Burke's Landed Gentry" [1], which traces the lineage of the main lines of Foljambes entitled to the Arms. The Foljambe Arms are described in several publications [1,2,3]. The Arms of Foljambe of Osberton are: Sable (black) a bend between six escallops or (gold). Crest - a jambe (leg) unarmored and spurred quarterly or and sable. The motto is Soyez Ferme (Be steadfast or Be firm). The arms for Foljambe of Osberton are depicted in "Burke's Landed Gentry"

[1]. The description of Arms for Foljambe of Walton is essentially the same except the bend is specified as or (gold) [4].

Escallops (scallops) are one of the most widely used symbols in heraldry. The scallop is a shellfish of the Genus Pecten, and is represented in heraldry by its shell. In heraldry, the scallop shell is a symbol of travel. It is the insignia of St. James of Compostela, the Patron Saint of Travel [4]. Santiago de Compostela, in Spain, is the reputed site of the tomb of the Apostle, St. James. A pilgrimage to Santiago de Compostela, undertaken as an act of penance or devotion, earned the pilgrim the opportunity to purchase and bear the Saint's emblem, a scallop shell [5]. Perhaps, DeFoleschamps from Normandy made the pilgrimage and earned the scallops.

The scallop shell also was the badge of the pilgrim crusaders. Its use on Arms could signify one or more ancestors went on Crusades [6]. Peter C. Fulghum writes, "He (our Dad, James Hooks Fulghum) told me the shells represented the Crusade of St. James which was defeated on the beaches. He also said the bend included twelve Maltese crosses but did not know why (possibly arms of a cadet branch? Or the present Arms were the Arms of a cadet branch of the above?)."

There were eight major Crusades and many interspersed minor campaigns. We are not sure to which of the Crusades our father referred. Possibly, Foljambes went with preachers, Peter the Hermit and Walter the Penniless, who organized one of the early bands of crusaders of the First (The Peoples) Crusade. This band was ambushed and all but annihilated by the Turks after being ferried across the straits from Constantinople in August of 1096. Richard, the Lionhearted and his knights were major forces in the Third Crusade in 1191-92. All of the other Crusades were mainly French and German, although Richard of Cornwall participated in 1239 and Prince Edward of England went to North Africa as a part of a minor crusade in 1271-72. Other ill-starred expeditions continued to be launched after the Eighth Crusade (1271) even into the Fifteenth Century. [7]. Most of the Crusades were failures.

Another interesting item found while researching Foljambe Arms was that the Calopus or Chatloup (probably a "cat-wolf" with horns) was at one time a badge of the Foljambe family [8]. This imaginary creature was a curious horned animal difficult to describe.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

Kierkegaard said "life must be lived forward but understood backward." If we do not heed the lessons of history, we are doomed to repeat the mistakes of the past. These observations apply to all areas of human endeavor, not just history.

The genealogical and historical information developed on the Fulgham-Fulghum Family comes at the price of long, hard work and expensive costs. Do not let our Fulgham-Fulghum Family Ass'n. down. FFFNA needs to move forward! Help support it by your volunteer work, FFFNA membership, and contributions. There are many opportunities to help in many ways, both big and small. Every little bit, even just a $5 annual gift will help. We need all Fulgh-ms to be a part of our work. Contact, Peggy F. Wood, Robert S. Fulghum, or one of the other officers. Also, support FFFNA by attending the 2000 reunion in Jackson, Mississippi in June. RSF

O. Thomas Fulghum Weds

Valentine's weekend. What a perfect time for a wedding. Our dear cousin, Tommy Fulghum, married Joan Johnson of Louisville, GA, Sunday, February 13, 2000. The wedding took place at the Louisville United Methodist Church.

These two dear people were sweethearts when they were college students and were able to renew their love some months ago.

Jacolyn and I were in Georgia to witness this joyful occasion. We know this union will be blessed - so much joy - so much love.

Perhaps you will get to meet Joan at the next reunion.

James E Fulghum, M.D.

Please note the recent change of my e-mail address - See page 2.

It is that time of the year for DUES. Please check your address label. If there is no date after your name, you have not paid your dues for 2000. We very much need the money in order to keep our operations going, including the production and mailing of the newsletter.

Ancestral Tour to England

I have had some inquiries about another Ancestral Tour to England. I have been in contact with James Bolles of Ancestral Tours about planning another trip for us for either May or September 2001. He will have information for me to discuss at the June reunion. If you have a preference for May or September, please let me know before the reunion. This will help Mr. Bolles plan for reservations and cost. Those of us who went in June 1995 had a great time and learned about the Foljambes of England. A TRIBUTE TO BERTHA F. WRAY

We always hear of Guardian Angels sent to watch over us every day.

Can I convince you Angels walk among us, and touch our lives even today

Can I take a moment to recognize a wonderful person we all know whose kind, caring, unselfish ways,

Have touched each one of us in happy and in troubled days.

Although she may never have held an office nor made the Hall of Fame,

I am sure if you look around, you too will know her by name.

She holds her riches and treasures in Heaven more precious than gold,

These are promises she can always hold.

Her warm and gentle smile has confronted some of us in troubled days; she's been a mother, a grama, too,

She's been a mentor, and I'm sure a special friend to most of you.

God has blessed her with uncountable years,

For the help and love she's shared with others, even through tears

We are all convinced God sent her to us from above, these are the reasons I believe Angels walk among us today,

For the love and compassion this small person holds for all of us is only an extension of God's love untold.

We've laughed with her, we've cried with her; we've shared her golden years.

I'm sure you will all agree God has blessed us with an Angel named Mrs. Bertha Fulghum Wray.

Her life has touched us all in some wonderful and special way.

Thank you for making all of our days sunny and bright,

You are part of our God's shining light!

Bertha departed this earth on December 15, 1999. God rest her soul

So I tell you again to please tell your children and grandchildren about your ancient ancestors of many years ago who we remember and who gave us a good name. Soyez ferme

Hercules Foljambe - Elizabethan Privateer*by J. Grant Fulgham

Who was the Elizabethan privateer, Hercules Foljambe, that somewhat mysterious purported ancestor of the Fulgham/Fulghum family in North America? Is it plausible that he was our ancestor? All of the "official" Foljambe pedigrees that include Hercules show him to have died without issue. Yet the Bishop's transcripts of Saint James Church in Clerkenwell, London, show him to have christened a daughter, Odelia, on February 18, 1597 [1]. He was married four times but none of the pedigrees document all of his marriages. He certainly died in straitened financial circumstances and no evidence of a will has been found in the published sources. He lived to a grand old age for the seventeenth century, 82 years, and his claim to fame was that of a gambler, a risk taker, and a warrior with a hot temper. He wagered his entire estate, his birthright, on a single privateering venture with George Clifford, the Earl of Cumberland ... and lost it all. Gentry family histories tend to be unkind to family members who lost their estates, for it was their fundamental responsibility to preserve the family estates at all costs. So we are faced with an ambiguous and sparse record of Hercules. There are several theories concerning our English origins, e.g., the Lincolnshire origin, London origin, Somerset origin, and more. The Hercules Foljambe theory is only one promising origin theory. The purpose of this article is to provide insight into Hercules' life and potentially spark some interest in our readers to pursue further study of Hercules and uncover new information.

Hercules Foljambe was born circa 1550 the son of Godfrey of Plumley and Elizabeth Draycott Foljambe, daughter of Philip Draycott [2]. Hercules grew up at Plumley and not Moor Hall ... the family did not acquire Moor Hall until 1573. Since Hercules was a younger son, having an older brother Godfrey, who would be the family heir, he followed the custom of the time and dedicated himself to soldiering. In a letter to King James ca. 1608, Hercules stated that "... for 40 years he had been employed in the Netherlands, in the field and at sea ..." [3]. This would place him in the military in 1568 at age 18. Hercules would have deployed many times to the "Low Countries" (Netherlands) over the succeeding decades with the Derbyshire trained bands when their arms were needed in the war with the French and Spaniards. In 1586, the Earl of Shrewsbury corresponded with John Manners, Deputy Lieutenant of Derbyshire, for the appointment of Hercules Foljambe as Captain of the trained band [4]. On Tuesday night November 15, 1591 a messenger named Leonard Frost summoned Hercules from Fairburn in the parish of Ledsham West Yorkshire, 2-1/4 miles from Ferrybridge, to Moor hall in Derbyshire [5]. His elder brother, Godfrey, had died and Hercules was his heir. Finally, at age 41 Hercules had an estate. Within the next few months exciting news of the Earl of Cumberland's capture of the Spanish treasure ship, the Madre de Dios, riveted England. Vast riches, said to exceed 500,000 pounds in value, flooded the country's markets from the ship's cargo. Hercules observed this windfall with an adventurer's interest. The outline of a future plan began to form in his mind.

In 1593, Hercules leased Moor Hall to Richard Gynne for 50Lbs/Yr and moved to London [5]. Although he appears previously to have married Sarah, daughter of John Hardwick of Hardwick (Colin Foljambe wrote the author that Hercules divorced her for adultery) and Anne (last name not known) [2], the Bishops Transcripts for St. Bride's Church Fleet Street, London tell us that he married Elizabeth Barker on February 25, 1595. [1] Also in 1595, Hercules' distant cousin and the head of the senior branch of the Foljambe family, Sir Godfrey of Walton, died naming Hercules as one of his heirs (See Family Facts No. 30, August, 1999 for details). The London of 1595 was teeming with merchant adventurers and would-be privateers ... Elizabeth I had opened the door to legalized privateering in her undeclared war with Spain by issuing "Letters of Marque" to vessel captains which protected them from being charged with piracy. English gentry were encouraged to take part in privateering expeditions for Queen and country. Many of these expeditions were joint stock ventures where those investing their resources shared in any "plunder" taken during the voyage. Given this as background, we can see that London gentlemen of the time, those who had ready resources for investment, and especially those with a military and seafaring background, were barraged with proposals to invest purse and person in privateering ventures. This was the London of 1597 when George Clifford, Earl of Cumberland, approached Hercules Foljambe with just such a proposal.

If you have always dreamt of visiting England, why not with family! The FULGHAM/ FULGHUM FAMILY NATIONAL ASSOCIATION is once again sponsoring an ancestral tour to England. Come celebrate 2001 with your cousins over in the Misty Isles of your ancestry. This delightful tour will take you to all the important locations and sites of the Fulgham/ Fulghum Family; a family so rich in English history!

The family's origins date back to the 11th century, so, for the true genealogist of family historian, just visiting and focusing on the most important and interesting sites, is like being 'a child in a candy store.'

You will visit the town of Chesterfield with its most remarkable Parish Church and its famous 'Twisted Spire'. In 1204, King John granted the town its Charter.. That's when the town started on the construction of this magnificent building. The main part of the church took 156 years to complete. As to the cause of the church's spire warping and twisting, there are a few interesting theories. One is that the Lucifer, who was flying from Nottinghamshire to Sheffield, rested upon the apex of the spire. At that moment a waft of incense from below so irritated his nostrils, that he gave a violent sneeze – so great that he twisted the whole structure. But seriously, the use of green timber combined with the weight of lead shingles, and the heat of the sun, most likely caused the twisting over the centuries.

Either way, leave it to the Foljambes to be involved with the unusual.
