In Memoriam

WILLIAM MILBY FULGHAM

Bill was From Here. He began this life February 24, 1923, in Highland Park on Richmond's north side, the son of Alvin James and Cecil Brown Fulgham, and was the fourth of five children. He began the next life October 15, 2013. He was preceded in death by his parents and three siblings, Grace Fulgham Cassidy, John and Jack Fulgham, his first wife, Martha Ellen Bickerstaff Fulgham, and a daughter, Mary Ellen Fulgham Sutliff. He is survived by his wife of 20 years, Jane Pote Fulgham; his brother, Robert C. Fulgham, Sr.; four daughters, Nancy F. McCaig (Michael), Barbara F. Cooper (Larry), Julie F. Devine; and Carolyn F. Ballard (David). He had 6 grandchildren and 6 great-grandchildren. Many in his daughters' generation considered him a father figure.

After proudly serving in the United States Marine Corps in the Pacific theater as a mechanic on the C-46 Curtiss Commando "Flying Cigar" during World War II, he returned to Richmond and began his family life and lifelong career as a salesman. He was briefly recalled by the Marine Corps for the Korean conflict. Bill loved people. His greatest regret in his latter years was that he no longer had the strength to call on his customers. But that didn't stop him from telephoning them!

He loved gardening and grew tomato vines taller than himself. He would share his bounty throughout the neighborhood where he was known by youngsters and adults alike as "Mr. Bill". He also shared his love of the Marine Corps and his country by leading Holiday parades on his Rascal scooter in the subdivision.

Bill was laid to rest with full military honors at 1 pm on Friday, October 25, in the Garden of Honor at Greenwood Memorial Gardens, 12609 Patterson Avenue. A celebratory reception will follow.

Memorial contributions may be given to The Richmond Fisher House, 1201 Broad Rock Boulevard, Richmond, VA 23249, which houses families of service people, patients at McGuire Medical Center. At ease, Marine!

Kenneth Edward "Ed." Fulghum

Kenneth Edward Fulghum, 87, died Saturday, October 5, 2013. He was born in Middlesex, NC on March 2, 1926 to Kenneth Milton and Mary Ella Johnson Fulghum. Ed served in the US Army during WWII and the Korean Conflict.

He is survived by his children, Debra Durham and her husband, Ralph, Ken Fulghum and his girlfriend, Sharon Shelton, and Steve Fulghum and his wife, Janie; grandchildren, Paul, Bryan, Kristen, Craig and his girlfriend, Meghan, and Brittany; great grandchildren, Madison, Aiden, and Carter.

In addition to his parents, Ed was preceded in death by his wife, Peggy Barfield Fulghum.

A funeral service was held 11:00 a.m. Thursday, October 10, 2013 at Brown-Wynne Funeral Home, 200 S.E. Maynard Road, Cary, NC 27511. Burial followed at Raleigh Memorial Park, 7501 Glenwood Ave., Raleigh, NC..

The family received friends from 6:00 -8:00 p.m. on Wednesday, October 9, 2013 at the funeral home.

The family requests memorial contributions to Military Missions in Action, 411 Judd Pkwy, Fuquay-Varina, NC 27526.

The Genius of Dogs by Brian Hare, PhD

Written by one of our cousins The Genius of Dogs, has recently been included in the New York Times Best Seller List for non-fiction books. It is now available in hardback, paperback, and in a Kindle version. The following is a synopsis of the book (written by the author Brian Hare, Ph.D.):

“If I were depending on the clichéd definition of genius, The Genius of Dogs would be a very short book. Forget Shakespearean sonnets, space flight or engineering the internet. Most dogs can do little more than sit and stay, and can barely walk on a leash. They are baffled when a squirrel disappears up a tree by circling the trunk, and most will happily drink out of the toilet bowl.”

“When judging the intelligence of animals, the first thing we look at is how successfully they have managed to survive and reproduce in as many places as possible. With this as our starting point, the dog is arguably the most the successful mammal on the planet, besides us. They have spread to all corners of the world, including inside our homes, and in some cases, onto our beds. While the majority of mammals on the planet have seen a steep decline in their populations as a result of human activities, there have never been more dogs on the planet than today. I am fascinated with the kind of intelligence that has allowed dogs to be so successful. Whatever it is - this must be their genius.”

“In 1995, I did an experiment with my dog in my parents' garage and started something new. I discovered that instead of domestication making our best friends stupid, our relationship with dogs gave them an extraordinary kind of intelligence. Almost simultaneously on the other side of the world, Adam Miklosi conducted a similar study to ours and independently came to the same conclusion.”

“The Genius of Dogs is that story of discovery, as well as the explosion of research that followed. We have learned more about dog cognition, or 'dognition' in the past decade than we have in the past century. The cognitive world of every dog is far more complex and interesting than we thought possible. We also have a tantalizing glimpse into the secret of their success. We can now pinpoint the stuff of dog genius. Some of what we have discovered will shock even the most knowledgeable dog owners. It is not always obvious where dogs will show an ability to make inferences or show more flexibility than other species. But in the end, your intuition is correct - your dog is a genius.”

“Even more exciting is that now you can find out how. Together with the world's leading scientists, we have developed Dognition, a toolkit of simple and fun science-based games that will give you a dog's eye view of your best friend's world - what they excel at, what they find challenging, and how they're trying to connect with you. Not only will Dognition (www.dognition.com) help you learn about your dog, you will also help create the largest collection of canine cognition data ever compiled. We're excited to see what this data will reveal and look forward to the new research it might spark that can benefit all dogs.”

THE FOLJAMBES OF MOORHALL

Part 3: Henry Foljambe and Summary of the work
by James Grant Fulgham

Henry Foljambe of Walton (1545 – 1631) was the third and youngest son of Godfrey Foljambe, Esq. of Moorhall. He was about five years of age when Godfrey died in ca. 1550. When Henry's mother re-married within the following year, or so, his new stepfather, James Hardwick, would become the only father Henry ever knew. No evidence has been found that Henry's birth father, Godfrey, bequeathed to him a patrimony upon his death in 1550; no evidence has been found that Henry's mother, Elizabeth, bequeathed to him an inheritance upon her death in 1573; Henry's step-father, James Hardwick, died a bankrupt in Fleet Prison in 1581 and, apparently, left no one any inheritance; the 1592 will of Henry's older brother, Godfrey, makes no mention of Henry; Henry died in 1631 over one year prior to his older, and only remaining, brother, Hercules. Although the historical record is mostly silent concerning Henry, it appears that he remained with the Moorhall estate well into his adulthood, in-service to his mother until 1573, then to his older brother, Godfrey, until 1592. Upon Godfrey's death in 1592, Hercules received Moorhall through the entail and he immediately leased it out. Henry found an acceptable position with his third cousin, Sir Godfrey Foljambe of Walton, knt., for Sir Godfrey's will of 1595 mentions “,, my servant Henry Foljambe” The subsequent Foljambe heirs of Walton apparently kept Henry on until his death in 1631 because his burial record in the family vault in Chesterfield styled him “of Walton.” Henry never married and no evidence has been found that he fathered any illegitimate children.

And so, in the end, none of the theories of a Moorhall origin for Captain Anthony Fulgham pans out. No evidence has been found of an “Anthony” among the offspring of Sampson Foljambe, the illegitimate son, and only issue, of Godfrey Foljambe of Moorhall. No evidence has been found of any male issue from any of the four marriages of Hercules Foljambe. Additionally, since Sarah Rye left Hercules soon after their marriage in 1602, and no evidence has been found of a reconciliation, it is very doubtful if any of her five children by George Poge, her deceased first husband, took the name Foljambe. And finally, no evidence has been found of any issue from Henry Foljambe, d. 1631. Is it possible that Anthony Fulgham was “of Moorhall?” In the absence of church christening records, or other official documentation placing Anthony Fulgham at Moorhall, this author places the Moorhall origin theory far down the list of viable origin theories. Based on raw statistics, Lincolnshire has the most 16th – 17th century Foljambe christening records and the most Anthonys, followed by London and Somerset. Somersetshire has the most 16th – 17th century Foljambe christening records in which the names Anthony, Nicholas, and John appear in the same family. This author's current working theory is that ours is a younger branch of the Foljambe family that left Derbyshire in the 15th Century and established a semi-permanent presence, first in Lincolnshire, then one or two generations in Hertfordshire, before making its home in Somerset. One or more branches of the Somerset family established their home in the greater London area in the 16th century.
